NEW ETFO RESOURCE

PRIMARYLY PLAY:

Engaging primary learners through play

Primarily Play: Engaging Primary Learners through Play provides practical tips and strategies for using play-based learning to develop the skills and knowledge necessary for children to succeed in life, while showing where play fits into the primary classroom.

Chapters include:

- why children need to play in school;
- connections between play and the delivery of the curriculum;
- planning and decision-making related to play; and
- bringing play from practice into policy.

The resource includes:

- research from the field about the benefits of play-based learning;
- scenarios to illustrate important ideas;
- questions to get one thinking about practice; and
- personal reflection about the children you teach each day.

Whether a new or an experienced teacher, Primarily Play: Engaging Primary Learners through Play will stimulate discussions about how best to prepare our students for the future.
